MODERN GLADIOLI
IRIS and DAHLIAS

Grown and for Sale by
W. E. SHERBROOKE
Kirkland, Wash.
(Formerly at Cornelius, Oregon)
Kirkland, Wash., January, 1922

Dear Friends and Patrons—

Greetings. You will remember me as specializing in Roses and Dahlias at Cornelius, Oregon, until a few years ago, where by conscientious and liberal treatment I built up a nice business.

During the last year of the war, for good reasons it seemed best to get into some more essential industry, so just before the armistice I abandoned the business and moved to Kirkland.

My heart has been in the business ever since and I now find myself yielding to the lure and getting back in the game.

In the meantime I have taken up the cultivation of the Gladiolus and have worked up a stock of several thousand surplus bulbs of the choicest varieties, not enough stock to warrant the issuing of an elaborate catalogue this season.

This modest little price list must therefore answer the purpose of renewing acquaintance and soliciting the consideration of your valued patronage.

Next year I hope to expand and perhaps have a few roses to offer though I have no rose plants to spare this season. Assuring you of my gratitude and careful personal attention to all orders, I am,

Yours to command,

W. E. SHERBROOKE.
IRIS GERMANICA

Tall bearded Iris

The Iris is fast gaining in popularity. As a border plant it is unsurpassed being wonderfully attractive and permanent, requiring very little care. The following varieties have been found most satisfactory:

EXTRA SPECIAL BARGAIN

For lack of space for storage and growing, I have decided to close out my entire collection of choice Dahlias at a price that should clear them. So after April 15, I will sell every tuber left over at 12½ cents each POSTPAID.

They will not all be labeled and selection is to be left entirely to me. Many labels are lost off in digging and handling and these will go with the rest, WHILE THEY LAST at 12½ cents each.

No order for less than $1.00 will be accepted unless extra is added for postage.

Discerning people will realize that this is a GENUINE BARGAIN, so order early.
